ACCEPTANCE OF RATES

All rates are in Australian dollars (AUD) and are effective from 02-Sep-2026 to 31-Dec-2026.

All charges will be charged based on dead weight unless stated otherwise. Pricing in this rate guide is applicable for up to cubic weight to dead weight ratio of VF1.50 :1.00. (Cubic conversion factor of 167 kilograms will be used.)

DHL eCommerce's offer of services will be deemed withdrawn if not accepted by EAS Project on or before 16-Sep-2026.

General Conditions for All Services

1. Pricing in this rate guide is applicable for one standard pickup per day and for pickup in bags only; DHL eCommerce reserves the right to charge the sender; additional fees and charges for pickups other than pickups in bags at a later date;
2. Pricing in this rate guide does not apply to any shipments of standalone lithium batteries and/or batteries contained within or packed with electronic devices, and any prohibited and restricted commodities;
3. Shipments of standalone lithium batteries and/or batteries contained within or packed with electronic devices are subject to prevailing regulations and packaging requirements as set out by the International Air Transport Association (IATA). Senders intending to ship such items are required to acknowledge and ensure compliance with the DHL eCommerce Lithium Battery Guide;
4. In addition to the "Standard DHL Prohibited and Restricted Commodities" list stated on below, the sender is required to check with the respective country's Customs for particular products;
<https://www.dhl.com/content/dam/dhl/local/au/dhl-ecommerce/documents/pdf/au-dhl-ecommerce-toolkit-au-classic.pdf>
5. In the event that the Sender's original choice of service and/or product is no longer applicable or available for any reason, DHL eCommerce reserves the right to select the next best available or appropriate service and/or product, including returns in respect of the Sender's Shipment, and the charges for the service and/or product actually performed and the applicable duties, taxes or other charges shall constitute the charges for the said Shipment will be payable in full by the sender;
6. Pricing in this rate guide does not include return of shipments to sender and does not include return of undeliverable shipments;
7. In the event where DDU shipment(s) are returned after clearance by customs authorities and attempted delivery because of (but not limited to) reasons including invalid address, receiver refusing to pay applicable charges, receiver failed to accept delivery, receiver failed to collect shipment from collection point/post office within given time frame, all applicable duties, taxes and charges will be charged to and payable by the sender of the shipment(s);
8. An accurate pre-alert and electronic manifest must be submitted prior to shipment arrival at DHL eCommerce processing centre;
9. DHL eCommerce reserves the right to review its rates upon seven day's prior notice should there be any significant increase in operational costs or supplier (including airline) rates, for any or all of the destinations or products/services, and revise existing or introduce new additional surcharges and apply them upon one day's prior notice. DHL eCommerce has no obligation to hold rates in this scenario other than as set out in this clause; A new contract is formed in respect of each shipment on the terms and pricing prevailing at that time;
10. All shipments are subjected to customs inspection and clearance;
11. DHL eCommerce reserves the right to bill back to sender at cost for any additional penalty, fees, charges, customs duties and/or other relevant tax imposed; by the destination authorities, such amounts shall be converted at DHL eCommerce's then-prevailing Network Exchange Rate (NER) to AUD;
12. Sender is solely responsible for complete, accurate and valid data submission for the shipments and accepts full responsibility for all consequences associated to their submission including financial responsibilities.
13. Sender is solely responsible for selecting and submitting shipments under the correct product and service code and correct incoterms, understanding and accepting that duties, taxes and other related charges payable by sender will depend on these selections, particularly incoterms provided by the sender. Additionally, the sender must provide valid, accurate, complete, relevant and applicable tax identification numbers including and not limited to IOSS, EORI and VAT.
14. Sender accepts that duties, taxes and any other charges will apply based on the declared value submitted by the sender. However, DHL eCommerce, its partners and relevant customs authorities reserve the right to assess sender's declared value and charge duties, taxes any other charges based on assessed declared value. Additionally, it is recommended that sender submits the declared value in destination country's currency. In case declared value is not submitted by sender in destination country's currency, DHL eCommerce, its partners and relevant customs authorities reserve the right to convert the declared value based on any exchange rate.
15. If several items are consolidated into one shipment, the value of the whole shipment will be assessed for duty, and multiple shipments sent on the same day to the same consignee may also be assessed for duty, if the declared value per consignee for the multiple shipments together exceeds the maximum de minimis value, then transit times will be affected and duties, taxes and other charges may apply and will have to be borne by the sender;
16. Undeliverable items under any circumstances beyond DHL eCommerce's control will be disposed off by the delivery service provider unless a local destination alternative address can be provided. All costs related to undeliverable shipments, redelivery, disposal and destruction of shipments are payable by the sender of shipments.
